THE case brought against Wilson & Neibaur of the Occidental saloon for permitting "a gambling device, known as a nickel-in-the-slot machine" to be and remain in their place of business was brought up before Justice Wedgwood today. His honor took the matter under advisement. The defendant did not deny that they allow the machine to stand in their barroom, in fact it stands in plain view of persons walking on the sidewalk passing their place of business and men occasionally drop nickles into it. About one out of three nickles drops into the percentage box and once in a while a nickle drops into a certain groove that opens another box, when the lucky person takes all the nickles that are in it.

Never before in the history of Provo on a Decoration Day, or other day, has the cemetery been visited by so many people as it was yesterday. There was no special memorial day exercises, but the entire populace seemed to turn out to the grave yard particularly during the morning and middle part of the day, and each man, woman and child was laden down with leaves, flowers and other decorations, and the mounds covering the departed ones were made to look most beautiful indeed. Very much good work has been done there recently and the Provo cemetery is now a place of which we may all well be proud.

Killing Crocodiles.

"There are two ways of killing crocodiles," writes an ex-resident of India. "One is by shooting with a rifle, but the most satisfactory way of dealing with them, besides being far the most sporting, is to bait a good large hook with a bird or small animal and fasten it by a chain to a good long rope, the end of which is firmly picketed, the rope being coiled and the bait laid in shallow water. There must be lots of slack line, as the crocodile does not swallow anything at once, but seizes it and takes it into deep water to gorge. A number of lines may be laid and looked up in the morning or cool of the evening. When hooked, it will take a good many men to haul a crocodile out, and as he resents the operation and can use his tail as well as his jaws one or two sportsmen will find considerable entertainment in dispatching him with spears. Some crocodiles grow to an enormous size, and their maws always contain round white stones, and often trinkets, the relics of inside passengers. The writer assisted at the death of an extraordinarily large 'saubese' which had six women's rings in her."—Bamington Library.

Women in Public Offices.

In Sweden more women than men are found in the telegraph offices, and single women are admitted to all departments of the postoffice service except that of letter carriers. Women have the same salaries and equal positions in the telegraph and postoffices in Norway and Denmark as men, and in Denmark may become "station masters" on the railway, while they also figure as shorthand writers in the parliament. We find them also in public offices on the most liberal terms that have been made in Finland and Iceland.—Philadelphia Ledger.

MR. GLADSTONE'S DECLINE.

The "Grand Old Man" is rapidly losing the Use of His Eyes.

The English newspapers print occasional small paragraphs about Mr. Gladstone. Otherwise alien observers would imagine the disappearance of the Grand Old Man from English life to be as complete as death would have made it, says a London correspondent. It is said, with some show of authority, that Mr. Gladstone will never again speak in parliament. He will certainly not be present until after the operation on his eye in June. It was plainly apparent on his arrival in London that his sight is becoming rapidly impaired.

The aged statesman had to be led from the train to his carriage by his two former secretaries, Hamilton and Murray. The old man looked well, but his inability to recognize those around him was patent. Just as his carriage drove off he recognized one gentleman with a wave of the hand. He kept his head uncovered for a short period in the presence of the crowd. Those who have long affirmed that it was work that kept Gladstone strong and vigorous for many years now prophesy his speedy collapse.

Police Reciprocity.

A matter seriously affecting the honor of certain public authorities in America has recently been the subject of informal diplomatic consultation here. It is well known that the English police within a few years have apprehended many American fugitives from justice. In most of these cases there has been a reward offered for the capture of the prisoner. The English police say that these rewards are almost never paid. Four recent cases are mentioned as proof of the allegation—Lynch, who escaped from the Massachusetts state prison; Sheig, the bank robber of Minneapolis; Roward, offered, $500; Kuhne, the Wisconsin murderer, reward offered, $3,500, and a Detroit forger, reward offered, $1,000. This failure to pay may seriously affect reciprocity between the police of the two countries.—London Letter.

World's Columbian Exposition.

Will be of value to the world by illustrating the improvements in the mechanical and engineering arts. The progress in medical science, has been of equal importance, and as a strengthening laxative that Syrup of Figs is far in advance of all others.

"I think the eye power of the present generation of civilized men must have deteriorated a good deal," said an oculist to me the other day. "I am called upon to examine so many young persons nowadays whose eyes show no symptoms of disease or strabismus, but are simply unable to do the ordinary amount of work required of schoolboys, schoolgirls, college students or moderate readers without showing symptoms of overwork."

"This weakness seems to be constitutional, and glasses are required which lessen the muscular strain on the eyes only. In spite of the invention of the typewriter, which has relieved the eye of so much work, the state of things is almost equally as prevalent in business circles as among students."—New York Herald.

Catarrh

In Its Worst Form
Life Almost a Burden
A Glorious Change Due Solely to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. C. King, Geneva, Ohio.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, and therefore it can only be cured by a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read what it did for Mrs. King, concisely expressed in her own voluntary words:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—From a grateful heart I write what your grand medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, has done for me. Five bottles cured me of catarrh in its worst form. I think it was only a matter of time, when it would have ended in Bronchial Consumption. I can scarcely realize where a few months ago life was almost a burden, sick and discouraged, now I am well and happy, gaining flesh and a new being. And all owing to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I will never be without it. Yours gratefully, MRS. CLARK KING, Geneva, Ohio. Hood's Pills cure liver ills, jaundice, biliousness, sick headache and constipation. 25c."
